1. Agencies shall have a sliding fee schedule for use in determining the fees for low-income clients found to be eligible to receive services partially supported by Community Services funds.
2. Low income is defined in the above table. The table shows family size and maximum monthly and annual amounts that an individual makes who is low-income (e.g. a single individual who is making $1,997 per month and whose annual income is less than $23,958 is low-income and eligible for assistance in paying for treatment).
3. A low-income individual is charged a minimum of $2.00 per counseling visit with the maximum fee per service visit being the actual cost of the service provided.
4. An individual who is on public assistance (Disability Lifeline) is not low-income; that individual is indigent. Individuals who are indigent are not charged on the sliding fee scale.
5. For families with more than 8 persons, add $3,820 for each additional person.
